Special Session: "Welcoming and Diversity: Equity in the Geosciences Scenario"

On August 11th, we have reserved a special moment for discussion about the importance of Equity in the Geosciences scenario. In this unprecedented session, the speakers will bring their research, experiences, and perspectives on how to promote inclusion and value diversity in our scientific research and practices. We believe that by holding sessions like this, we will be closer to a truly representative and open science for everyone.

Gender Equity among Speakers:

We value representation and equitable participation of genders and races in all spheres, including event coordination, panels, and presentations. In our efforts to promote diverse perspectives and knowledge, CBGq is committed to diversity among coordinators and gender equality among speakers.

Healthy Eating:

Taking care of the well-being of our participants is one of our main concerns. Throughout the event, we will offer water and there will be healthy food options, including fresh salads, seasonal fruits, and natural juices.

Accessibility and Inclusive Environments:

Our event will be held in a fully accessible space on the ground floor, with no architectural barriers, allowing the free movement of wheelchairs and baby strollers. We are determined to ensure that everyone can fully participate without physical limitations.

Welcoming Environment for Children:

We value the presence of the entire family at our event. Therefore, we encourage the attendance of babies and children in all environments, always accompanied by their guardians. Additionally, we will provide a designated Meeting Point to assist children in finding their family members, promoting a safe and welcoming environment. While we won't have children's activities this time, we plan to implement them in future events!

Give Your Opinion:

Your opinion is valuable to us! The Welcoming and Inclusion form is still open, and we invite you to share your suggestions and needs. We want to learn about the amenities that could help you attend the event, making it even more inclusive and enjoyable for everyone. Your presence is essential to making this gathering truly special and representative. We count on you!
